

The New York Energy Buyers Forum

invites you to

DG For Free: No-Cost Backup Power

Wednesday, Mar. 17, 2004, 8:30 AM – 11 AM

(sign-in and coffee starts 8:30 AM, seminar/exhibit runs from 9 – 11 AM)

As the demand for reliable power grows, many are looking for ways to finance distributed generation (DG) backup power systems at their facilities. Some vendors now offer deals that trade power contracts for investment dollars.

Learn about such arrangements from suppliers, a contract analyst, and a DG customer. Review a checklist of caveats for securing the best deals. Find out how changing tariffs impact the value of DG. Question vendors and take literature back to the office for review by your firm.

Maybe next time others' lights go out, yours will be shining – at no cost to you!

Presenters:

- Lindsay Audin, Energywiz Inc., energy contract analyst
- Joe Kinney, Director of Engineering, New Yorker Hotel (DG since 2001)
- tabletop exhibits by DG Energy, Hess Microgen, OfficePower, RealEnergy

Location: 780 Third Avenue (at 48th St.), C-2 basement level auditorium, New York City

Admission: Forum members will receive free tickets by mail.

Non-member admission is $100, payable in advance or at registration (sorry, no credit cards). All attendees please RSVP to 212-419-1919 or to events@nyebf.org by Friday, March 12.

And check out the Forum at www.nyebf.org!